Program Overview

The delivery of perinatal home care services demands additional consideration above that usually encountered in the more familiar home health services. Specifically, services can be needed immediately resulting from a change in maternal, fetal, or infant condition. Home follow-up must be thorough in order to detect potential problems before patient progress deteriorates. Our staff is exceptionally well trained, certified, and committed to continuing their individual education activities to stay current with emerging technologies and therapies. Additionally, our nursing staff possesses strong leadership and communication skills in order to provide any assistance necessary in keeping the patient informed and compliant.

Remote Care Access

Our remote care internet based technology provides automated near real-time notification of events and universal access to patient data for authorized caregivers.
